"We Go The Distance For You"

Thanks to our retail and "online" customers we are one of the largest resources for goose down comforters, pillows and featherbeds. Consumers that compare our quality and prices to those of department stores, discounters, catalogs and other web sites find that we are indeed unbeatable - and we guarantee that! Know the facts of down before you buy.

FACT: Down comes from the chest of the bird to keep it insulated from the weather. Feathers (those things with quills) come from the back of the bird to keep it dry. Down can cost as much as $10.00 an ounce, feathers 10¢ an ounce. Over 90% of down manufacturers find it to their advantage to add over 30% feathers to their down. It's like buying three pounds of ground sirloin and getting two pounds of meat and one pound of fat. You have paid for meat and got fat, it's the same with their down, they both do it because it's legal. We do not contaminate our down by adding feathers to it.

KNOW THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY IT

FACT: Fill power, this is the amount the cubic inches filled by one ounce of down. Higher fill power means a higher quality down. You will find that as the quality of the down increases, so does the comfort & life of the item.

FACT: We use only high thread count, baffle box construction, 100% cotton covers on our down comforters & pillows. Down insulates by trapping air and holding in your body temperature, keeping you comfortable through the night. Low quality comforters are usually heavier because it takes more of an inferior down to fill a comforter. Inferior down becomes clumpy and it can't breath, resulting in your becoming over heated and uncomfortable. Our high quality down gives you the warmth and comfort without the weight.

FACT: In all likelihood you will have your comforter longer than the car you are now driving.

East End Is Paralyzed By Millions Of Tons Fluffy White Stuff

By Dan Rattiner

They said it could never happen again. In September 1938, because weather forecasting wasn't as sophisticated as it is now, the radio said eastern Long Island would have a beautiful day, a near calm wind and a cloud cover scutting off to clearing. At that very moment, the hurricane which had hit Miami eight hours earlier, and which had been duly reported on the radio as dawdling far offshore of Palm Beach, was instead barreling down at top speed on Westhampton Beach. What happened after that, which was the single worst meteorological blow in twentieth century East End history, is well known. Four hours later there were 375 dead, flooded downtowns, and knocked down trees and power lines everywhere.

Well, what happened this past Monday and Tuesday was not up to the Hurricane of '38, but the level of reporting about the coming storm, with expected snowfall of six to twelve inches, was just about as remiss.

The storm hit around seven p.m. Sunday evening, February 16, and brought howling winds of up to fifty miles an hour together with more than 25 inches of snowfall before blowing out to sea at 10 a.m. Tuesday. It goes down, officially, as the Blizzard of '03, and its 25.5 inch total snowfall in Bridgehampton during that period ranks it as the third most powerful Northeaster' to hit this area in the past one hundred years.

Oddly, the power lines never went down, there were few emergencies and the drifting never got higher than five or six feet. By Tuesday noon, everyone seemed up and about, grinning from ear to ear from the pleasure of it all, and heading out, if they had a four wheel drive vehicle, to have a look.

"Do not drive unless you absolutely have to," was the official word about the afternoon. It was widely ignored. It was indeed a winter wonderland.

"I think we benefited from global warming," the official weatherman in these parts, Dick Hendrickson Sr., said from his weather station at his former chicken and duck farm. Hendrickson,

South O' the Highway (and the North too)

Several Hamptonites with large digs in the city are downsizing. Among those selling their apartment/penthouse/condos are Music Man Tommy Mottola, selling a 15,000 square foot townhouse on East 64th Street for $29 million to move into one half that size. Also actress Isabella Rossellini, selling an East Side flat for $4.6 million to buy a West Side spot for half that.

A virtual gaggle of Hampton dog owners and their woofers descended on the opening of a new doggy store, Jazzy Park Avenue, presented by Macys, the other day. The line up — human line up — included Ron Perelman and Ellen Barkin, Tony Randall, Barry Slotnick, Marty Richards, Cindy Adams, Lizzie Grubman and lots of others.

Our new Congressman, Tim Bishop (D-Southampton) has received an appointment to the Subcommittee on Highways and Transit of the powerful Committee on Transportation and Infrastructure.

Newsday has reported that Ivy K. Ong, the casino operator that has been talking to the Shinnecock Indians about a possible casino on their reservation, has a criminal record involving fraud. His bad times occurred in the 1970s and 1980s, but if true the tribe, which knew nothing about it, needs to be careful.

Never has a community wanted so much for a beloved rock star to find a soul mate. If what the community hears is true, Billy Joel has found her, a girl from West Virginia named Kate.

Clive Davis' pre-Grammy party at the Regent Wall Street will have many Hamptonites, including Ahmet Ertegun, Kurt Vonnegut, Martha Stewart, Mort Zuckerman and Howard Stringer.

Rabbi Marc Schneier of Westhampton Beach was the keynote speaker at the Foundation for Ethnic Understanding's First Annual Latino/Jewish Congressional Awards Ceremony and Reception February 5 in Washington. Twenty Congresspersons attended.

Super model Christey Turlington and actor/producer Ed Burns celebrated their love for Valentines Day at Gurney's Sea Water Spa with facials and a couples massage.

Angelo Monte Jr. (Chip) and Gurney's Inn fitness princess Candice Giordano , owner of "Hard Bodies" have officially announced their wedding for early May.

Anchorman Bill Beutel retired last week. His career at Channel 7 ABC spanned more than forty years. In his early years, he was an overseas correspondent, then the bureau chief, reporting from Vietnam, Israel, Northern Ireland and the Middle East. In 1970 he became the anchor of Eyewitness News, a post he held until last year. Beutel lives in Bridgehampton with his beautiful wife Adair.

We Do Mortgages. Just Mortgages

Ellen Bitton
President

And because we do one thing, and one thing only, we do it very well. In fact, when it comes to securing mortgages, people say we're the best. We'll get you the perfect mortgage. You may only need us once or twice in a lifetime. But when you do, we'll be there. Call us. You'll see. There's a lot more to mortgage then just numbers.

who is ninety, has been keeping the gauges and dials for the National Weather Service since he was sixteen. This is probably the longest continuous job held for a single employer by anybody on the entire East End. He knows his stuff.

"You get a storm like this about once a decade," he told us. "Usually the temperature is 15 to 20 degrees for a storm at this time of year. That would lead to eight or ten foot drifts for a two-foot snowfall. But here, we had temperatures that hovered around 28 degrees. So the drifts never got more than four to five feet."

Of course our farmers and construction people with the heavy equipment, called in by the Town Highway Departments to help out in this heavy lifting emergency, could pile the snow up as high as eighteen feet, which the photo at the top of this article shows they did on Sag Harbor Main Street. And however you look at it, they were our heroes. I know some of them who worked for twenty-four hours straight digging us out. And if you want a few hundred thousand tons of snow, I know some people who can get it for you cheap.

As for why the power lines didn't come down, the explanation seems to be twofold. One is that there was no ice storm. The other was, and is, that our power lines are now like thick ropes as befits a community wired into the world with cable, telephone and the Internet. The ropes held.

There were incidents. People who tried to get their cars to go where they couldn't. People stranded at neighbor's homes. Practically nobody could get to work. So everybody just stayed home and got through. But Conrad Kooritzky, a worker on board the Port Jefferson Ferry to Bridgeport, slipped and fell off the boat while it was pitching in its dock there, and though he remained in the freezing cold water for nearly five minutes before being rescued, he suffered only exposure. Up in Orient, the Cross Sound Ferry soldiered on, finally canceling their boats for the rest of the day at 1 p.m. Monday. Probably the funniest thing was to see dogs galumphing around in the snow, incredulous that their paws and legs kept sinking through the snow leaving them essentially like moles, wondering where the outside they all knew had gone to. They'd think about the situation briefly, then turn back for hearth and home.

How this storm came to wallop us with such force is another story. The snows came up in a front from the southwest, crossing the Appalachians in West Virginia, then turned north to run head on into a cold front coming down from Canada. The cold front slowed but did not stop the storm, which now moved slowly up through southern New Jersey until it made a broad front in northern New Jersey and New York City. Then, almost at a standstill, and dropping more and more snow, it slipped sideways, to the east, and the whole thing just rumbled through this gap and basically just walloped the whole length of Long Island, the worst of it along the South Shore where it stayed the longest time. Farmingdale got 21 inches. Howard Beach got 25 inches. Levittown got 20 inches. By contrast, Smithtown got 15 inches, Baiting Hollow got 14.9 inches and Plainview got 18 inches. Central Park reported 19.2 inches. Nothing, however, seems to have topped Bridgehampton where Dick Henderson clomped out through the drifts and recorded 25.5 inches.

In case you were thinking, however, that the Hamptons got the worst of the entire sequence of the Blizzard of '03 — Boston got less than we did

Joe Millionaire, The Mantle Clock And Death At A Local Marina

By Dan Rattiner

One of the most popular shows on TV this season is called "Joe Millionaire." I haven't seen it and I'm not very likely to see it because from what I've been told about it, I don't want to see it. There's this guy Joe who, in real life, is a construction worker in the South somewhere making $19,000 a year. In the previews to the show, which I did see, they show him barechested sitting on a bulldozer, shifting gears under a hot sun to get the bulldozer to move around some dirt. He's a handsome fellow. Then they show him out front of a castle in England, a pretty girl on each arm, escorting them out past the butler to the limousine, where the chauffeur is holding open the door. An announcer whispers the story. Everybody knows the story. The network has rented the castle. The girls, and ten others, have been told they would be spending the upcoming episodes enjoying their time with this wealthy millionaire, and maybe he would propose to them. He has agreed to propose to one of them. Of course the women are not told by the network that he is just a construction worker. They lie. They tell the girls he inherited fifty million dollars.

And so, the girls come back week after week and have dinner with him and sit by the fire with him and dance with him there at his palatial estate and meanwhile the cameras roll. During one episode, two of the girls are overheard talking about all the money he's got and sure, that makes a difference. After another episode, newspaper reporters were given a tip and they did some research and came up with the fact that one of the women had made porno tapes. She seemed to be one of Joe's favorites. Would the network disqualify her and make up some story about her to Joe? Would he propose to her?

The real interesting thing of course is that week after week, the girls come back to the castle. During the week, they have not been sequestered. They are out there, waitressing at Denny's or working at Walmart and they can read, and they can watch TV. How can they not know? Of course they know.

On the other hand, they don't know, because everybody in the United States knows that this whole thing was recorded ahead of time. What happened, happened. It's done. What we are seeing happened before that, just as the twelve girls are now seeing what happened before that. Joe, too.

Isn't it interesting how easily everybody falls into this mode of watching something in the present that has already happened yet we don't know what it is yet. It wasn't always so.

I remember Mel Brooks' movie Spaceballs. In the movie, Rick Moranis, as an evil villain character, is taken by an assistant past some book shelves aboard a spaceship where Spaceballs, The Movie, is right there on the shelf as a video tape.

"How could they make a video tape?" Moranis asks. "We haven't even finished the movie?"

"They made the videotape before the movie," the aide says. "They can do things like that."

"Amazing," Moranis says.

Which brings me to this seventy-year-old wooden mantelpiece clock I have in our living room. I got it at a yard sale in Amagansett last year. There were actually two of them. One had chimes that counted off the hour. The other one didn't. They wanted thirty bucks for the one that didn't, forty for the one that did.

They were both beautiful and certainly worth it. I picked up the one with the chimes. There was a little sticker on the back that told you the maker. It was Sessions Electric. There was also a tiny door on the back you opened to service the insides. I opened it. Inside were all these tiny brass gears. But how did I know the chimes worked? I asked. Otherwise I'd buy the other one.

"The chimes worked the last time I plugged it in," the man at the yard sale said.

That was good enough for me.

At home, I put it up on the mantle and plugged it in. It started up, a small motor inside making a kind of chugging sound which got faster and faster until the clock got up to speed. This was great! It was almost the hour. I waited. The second hand went around and the minute hand moved and the hour hand finally pointed to eleven o'clock in the morning. Then, there it was! The clock chimed a little fanfare and then bonged twice. Two o'clock. Obviously it needed to be reset.

I quickly learned the clock's awful secret. Yes, it bonged and chimed. But never quite right. At three o'clock it would bong five. Then at four o'clock it would bong eleven. Stuff like that. Every once in awhile it would chime the quarter-hour or the half-hour, sometimes putting in bongs, sometimes not. Also the clock sometimes ran fast and sometimes slow. Your watch would say it was eleven. The clock would say it was twelve-fifteen. Then it would play a fanfare and bong four times.

I loved this clock when I got it and I love it still. It is up there, the centerpiece of the living room, doing its thing. Over the weeks and months I've had it, the chugging sound has softened and mellowed, probably from its newly rediscovered youth. Furthermore, the clock seems more inclined to run ahead than behind. It certainly does make these wonderful, soothing fanfares and bongs.

"My goodness, is that the time?" a friend asked the other afternoon after the mantelpiece clock went through its bonging act. It wasn't. The clock said three-fifteen in the afternoon. It was, in fact, two p.m. according to a wall clock I could see the other way in the kitchen.

"No it's not," I reassured her. "I just like the way it sounds. It's two."

"Well thank goodness for that," she said.

But I've been thinking. For the past week, the mantelpiece clock has run ahead anywhere from fifty-five minutes to two hours and ten minutes. It's always ahead these days. So what does it know that we don't know?

I thought of Joe Millionaire. And I thought of a friend I had in high school who, one afternoon, was told that his father, a half-hour earlier, had been working at this boat yard standing under a boat being hauled out of the water when the rope broke.

Ever since that day, I have occasionally thought about this man's father, whom I had met once or twice, a man with a moustache who told jokes and drank beer and whose family left the area after his untimely death, and all I can think is that here was a man who just never knew what hit him. I do now know what hit him, looking back. The man lived, supported his family, helped others, coached Little League, and yet when you think about him you think only about how he died, as if that spectacular event was his defining moment.

"Remember Uncle Lou?"

"Yeah. What a shame."

Maybe everything has already happened. And we just don't know it. We live day to day. We have our expectations, our hopes, our dreams, our joys, and our sorrows. And we just don't know.

Maybe we ought to turn on the TV. •

The Oldest Private School in the Hamptons Is to be Transformed

By Dan Rattiner

If, sometime in the near future, you see little twelve-year-olds running around downtown Bridgehampton in pressed chinos, white shirts and shined shoes, red ties and blue blazers, you will know that a new school has come to town. Two wealthy New Yorkers will have brought the Dalton School, or one very much like it, to the Hamptons.

The project started about a year ago when two wealthy men, Michael Recanati and Ira Statfeld, with a 10-year-old son in the private Dalton School in Manhattan, began to think it might be wonderful to have their wonderful son Rafe schooled out in the Hamptons. They already have a house out here.

They drove out one weekend and looked into the matter and determined that the only options available to them in the private school arena were the very progressive Hampton Day School in Bridgehampton, the very progressive Hayground School in Bridgehampton, and the very progressive Ross School in East Hampton. The Dalton School is a demanding, conservative private school where the kids learn to say Yes Sir and No Sir and It's a Pleasure Meeting You Sir, and none of the three schools out here seemed to be a fit. Furthermore, only one of them, the Ross School, had a high school. And so, disappointed, they went back to the city.

The men could not, however, get the thought of having their son in a "Dalton in the Hamptons" out of their minds. They talked about it. Surely there must be other people who felt the way they did and wanted to get their kids out of the city. There must be, they thought, enough of these people so that, if one were to build a more traditional prep school in the Hamptons, there would very quickly be a full complement of students.

The Dalton School is a demanding, conservative private school where the kids learn to say Yes Sir and No Sir...

And so, they began to plan. Among others, they contacted Janet Stork, the director of Dalton's elementary department. As it turned out, she was thinking of moving out to the Hamptons as well. She had applied for the job of headmistress at the Hampton Day School when it had come up last year, and she almost got it. In the end, after evaluating dozens of applicants, the board decided to consider just two, Janet Stork and James Ferrer. The job went to Mr. Ferrer, who, two years later, is still running the place.

The Dalton-like project moved ahead. Mr. Recanati and Mr. Statfeld created a non-profit corporation called The Village Project, opened offices in Bridgehampton, and hired Janet Stork and a former Dalton teacher named Mariah Bruehl to run it. In a nutshell, a new private prep school would come to the Hamptons.

In looking into the matter further, something else very interesting came up. The Hampton Day School campus is on just five acres on Butter Lane. But the property of the Hampton Day School totals 25 acres, the 20 available acres set aside for expansion in the future. Why not buy these remaining 20 acres and, on them, put a new private high school? In fact, why not talk to the Hampton Day School people and see if something might be worked out within the corporate shelter of the Day School?

As it turned out, the Hampton Day School was very interested in having discussions. Founded in the 1960s, it was, until 1990, the only game in town. Since then, the other two schools have come along and, because all three schools are sort of on the same wave length, there developed a competition between them for students. Maybe it was time to change the situation. Maybe the Hampton Day School could be the one to change to a more prep school approach. This change could be good for everybody: for all students because there would be a wider set of choices, for the Ross School and the Hayground School because they would be left alone to compete with one another, and for the Hampton Day School itself, which would now have a high school. But it would take a big bankroll to make this happen.

Recanti and Statfeld made a proposition to the Hampton Day School board. And Hampton Day has accepted. Henceforth, the Hampton Day School will be one component of a larger educational institution called "The Village Project." The Hampton Day School, perhaps with a new name, will still offer classes from pre-school up through the eighth grade. But from there it will merge with a new high school, which will educate the students from ninth grade through twelfth. The whole place may have a new name, to distinguish it from what went before. This has not been decided. In any case, Ms. Stork will be the superintendent of the entire project, from pre-K to 12th grade, and Mr. Ferrer will become the principal of the part that is now the Hampton Day School. I spoke with Mr. Ferrer.

"Yes, this is all very exciting," he said, "and I am totally in favor of it. I think the level of education we offer our students will be the same as that which will be offered at the new high school. And we should be able to work out the curriculum."

I also spoke with Roy Scheider, the actor, who is on the board of the Hayground School.

"This is good for everybody," he said. "It creates more options. And it will bring more students to the Hamptons."

Ms. Stork emphasized the local environmental aspects of the curriculum for the school, noting the very exceptional ecology of our region.

"The integration of it all is what matters," she said. "We will have organic gardens. We will teach the students and test them, not for rote answers, but for full-blown understanding."

Goal for the opening of the high school is 2005. The cost has been estimated at $25 million and they are still a good distance from their goal in terms of permits and construction and funding and so forth. But if all this happens, downtown Bridgehampton, a former farming town, will just have to, well, sartorially shape up over at Starbucks. • and so did Albany — think again. Weather gauges recorded 49 inches of snow in Garrett County, Maryland, high up in the Appalachians.

"It looks like Siberia," said Paul McIntyre, from his offices atop Keysers Ridge, elevation 2,900 feet. "We have forty foot drifts in some places from storms that came before. The trees are gone. Now this."

Last Friday, I spoke to William Masterson, who is the Superintendent for Highways of Southampton Town. One and a half years ago, there had been a fire on the wooden bridge that takes Sagaponack Road over the railroad tracks in that town. The bridge was closed. And the railroad decided that since it was on their property and belonged to them, they would rebuild it. They got approvals to build it in accordance with various building laws, and they screwed up. It looked nothing like the plans they had filed. It had to be taken down and built again. Now, after all this time, it was ready.

"We are opening it on Tuesday at 9 a.m., February 18," Masterson said to me.

I needled him a bit. "They built the Empire State Building in eleven months. This will be eighteen months. Are you sure you have it done?"

"Just be there," he said. I was. A pile of snow, left at the southern entrance to the bridge by the snowplow trucks, towered about fifteen feet up completely blocking the approach. They'd not open this day, I guess. •

New York City, Homeland Security and Observing an Ancient Religion

By Dan Rattiner

In the old days, which was about a month ago, the Homeland Security people wouldn't tell us much. They'd say there has been an increased amount of "chatter" from Al-Qaeda sources and we'd better really be on the lookout for terrorist acts. Frankly, that was good enough for most of us.

But then, two weeks ago, in addition to the increased "chatter" (hi there, how's the wives, may God be with you, etc.), Homeland Security, apparently invoking the Freedom of Information Act, began telling us everything. The chatter includes a reference to a package. Look out for packages. The warning was specifically for along the East Coast. Look out for people acting suspiciously, or carrying little vials of things that might be deadly. Buy duct tape and plastic sheeting. Tape the sheeting over the windows and it will keep poisons out. There was talk of a "dirty bomb."

I was in the city for a few days during this time. At a party, we learned that a man, who has an apartment on the twentieth floor of a thirty-eight story building, had bought his wife a parachute. People were taking the subways half an hour after rush hour. If there was a terrorist attack on the subway, it would probably be at rush hour. Meanwhile, because of pessimism, fear and uncertainty, the economy was staggering.

I thought everybody in the city was scared to death. I went to a comedy club hoping it would cheer me up.

"The governor of North Dakota has told residents of Bismarck to be on high alert," a comic said. "Bismarck could be target number one. Yeah. They're plotting now to hit an Applebees. I don't think so."

What terrorist act Al-Qaeda IS plotting surely is unknown to me. But as a result of this change in what was being reported to us, I'll bet at least one thing they are plotting at Al-Qaeda Cell Headquarters is about what to say on the telephone now that they know we are listening.

Homeland Security has no brains. Why are they so dumb?

"We just heard seven Al-Qaeda members give simultaneous raspberries on their telephones. We think the target might be Strawberry Fields in Central Park."

We're scared, nobody goes out, the economy goes down the tubes and Western Civilization consists of people standing on street corners selling pencils.

In many ways, because Homeland Security reported everything in vivid detail and was scaring us to death, the terrorists had won. We're scared, nobody goes out, the economy goes down the tubes and Western Civilization consists of people standing on street corners selling pencils.

On the other hand, in a very weird way, we had won. Because they won, they won't actually have to do any terrorist acts to terrify us. Nobody dies.

What a world.

Get it straight. We don't want to know. We want to know when there is an alert. The rest we can dream up. Just get them.

While in the city, I saw soldiers with semi-automatic submachine guns standing at strategic locations. It's reassuring. But it did bring back a memory. Years ago, I lived in Guatemala for a few months, and it was not uncommon to see soldiers with semi-automatic submachine guns standing at strategic locations like, for example, out front of the local bank. These guns were loaded. One day, I was skipping along and waved to one of these soldiers. He raised his gun, pointed it at me and said, in English, 'Bang, bang, bang, bang, bang.'" He thought this was very funny.

I think it was more than coincidence that this decision to tell the American public all about their possible demise occurred at the same time that NASA decided to give full and complete information about every detail and report involving the Columbia disaster. This was very different from the Challenger disaster in 1986. Back then, they made all information top secret. The public knew nothing.

Was Homeland Security taking NASA as a model for Al-Qaeda warnings? Different thing entirely. Real bad idea.

The real model that Homeland Security should be looking at is the landing of Nazi spies on our shores during World War II. Looking back on this, when the information was finally made public, it seemed like just an awful cover up. But now that I understand it, it makes perfect sense. That is the model Homeland Security should follow.

A team of four Nazi spies came by German submarine across the Atlantic during June, 1942. The submarine surfaced just beyond the surf line at Amagansett at about 2 a.m. on June 13. The top hatch opened. German sailors inflated a rubber boat, the spies climbed in and they were paddled ashore by oarsmen who unloaded them at the shore, along with half a dozen wooden boxes, then paddled back out to the submarine which submerged and motored off.

The spies changed from Nazi uniforms into fishermen's clothes there on the beach, buried the uniforms in the boxes along with the dynamite and other bombs they intended to use to blow up factories and power plants, then they walked single-file to the Amagansett Railroad Station and took the dawn train to New York. There they holed up for a week playing cards, waiting for further orders that never came until finally, one of the spies decided to be a hero and turn the others in. He went to FBI headquarters, first in New York City where they thought he was a nut case and refused to hear him, and then to Washington where he asked to speak to chief J. Edgar Hoover. He turned in the others, but the hero's ticker tape parade he envisioned never materialized. Instead, the FBI put him in jail in Washington in solitary confinement for the next fifteen years. The other spies they hung.

J. Edgar Hoover, the head of the FBI, took full credit for the capture. "It was because of the diligent undercover work of our vast network that this plot was foiled," he said, lying through his teeth. He virtually dared Hitler to try sending spies to America again. Hitler never did.

So the city cleaned the stores out of duct tape. One man, in the New York suburb of Farmingdale, cocooned his entire house in black plastic held together with duct tape. Possibly Mr. Bush was of the belief that a run on duct tape and plastic would turn the economy around. It didn't.

Finally, homeland Security Director Tom Ridge got on TV and said he really didn't mean we should all go out and buy duct tape. Three days later he said the source of the story about an imminent terrorist attack failed a lie detector test.

"Well, that's the risk you take when you bribe unsavory characters," Ridge said.

Four days later, he ordered the terrorist alert level downgraded from orange to yellow. He would have done more good, it seemed to me, if he had done that a week earlier and downgraded to Puce in honor of Fashion Week.

As for George W.'s economic plan, that seemed to be stupid and not well thought out either. The keystone of it is a big tax cut for the rich. As for the rest of us, particularly because George W.'s plan leaves the states out to dry, taxes overall will go up. One hopes this plan never passes. Alan Greenspan has declared it stupid unless it's linked to a spending reduction, which it isn't. Forty major economists across the country have signed a letter to Mr. Bush stating that it is stupid. Busy with war preparations, there's no focus on any economic reform that would work.

Another mistake being made, I believe, is George W.'s failure to explain who the enemy is and why they are attacking us. Perhaps he doesn't understand it himself. He says it doesn't matter. Whoever they are, these unbalanced terrorists, he will hunt them down, disarm them, and bring them to justice. They are attacking our way of life. With Iraq as their partner.

Well, Iraq is not their partner. And they aren't attacking our way of life. They are attacking US because they believe we are attacking THEM.

Let's look at this. Here in America, in a Christian society, the Catholic Church is accused of a terrible crime, failing to keep certain priests from molesting children and then covering up what they do. The repercussions of this are devastating. And they are resulting in changes. The bishops say they will do whatever is necessary to put a stop to this. On behalf of their predecessors, they accept the blame. They'll cast out the wrongdoers.

Here's something else going on in America. Osama bin Laden, a Muslim halfway around the world, has said, "kill Americans." Subsequently there was 9/11 and Anthrax. Last week at the annual Hajj in Mecca, another Islamic leader urged followers of Islam to become suicide bombers against the enemies of Islam who have "now bared their fangs." Wouldn't you think that here in America, the leaders of American Islam

The College At 40

Presidents And Professors From The Early Days Talk About Tumultous Times

By Lise Visser

Five prominent founding members of the Southampton College community gathered at Rogers Memorial Library to relate the early experiences of the institution as it begins its 40th year. At the invitation of Penny Wright, Director of the library's adult programs, Charles Hitchcock, Ral Wilker, Harry Marmion, Bill Peterson and John Strong assembled in front of photographs and 45s from the '60s to record this oral history for an animated Friday evening crowd.

After discussions in Southampton over a span of twenty years certain, factors occurred to create the right moment for the college to be established. Suffolk County was growing, Long Island University (LIU) was expanding, and its CW Post campus was flourishing to the west in Brookville. Through the vision of the College Committee of Southampton, formed in 1961, the 60-acre Tucker Mill Inn property was purchased for the new campus in the magnificent Shinnecock Hills and approval was given by LIU. In the Fall of 1963 twelve faculty and 313 students began the first classes at the Southampton Center for LIU. New dorms popped up all around campus, and conversations continued about the school's history right up to the present day and the dazzling Chancellorship of Robert F. X. Sillerman.

The college's second President, Harry Marmion, objecting to LIU listing Southampton as a "center," used the term "college" until he prevailed. "Degrees are not given by centers, degrees are given by colleges." Although tuition was higher due to the lack of an endowment, students wanted to be able to receive higher education closer to home. Ultimately, the college "matured in a very gracious way."

The college originally emulated small private schools in New England. Young women did not share dorms with young men in those first years. Girls' dorm doors had to be open the width of a book, and girls had to wear skirts at dinner. They would receive demerits if they came in after curfew, and grounded if they received a certain level of demerits.

The college originally emulated small private schools in New England... and girls had to wear skirts at dinner.

Those early years were not without fears. According to panelist John Strong, who taught at the school from 1964 to 1998, business leaders and politicians in Southampton were behind the establishment of the college but some in the community "were scared to death" about the impending "barbarian invasion" and "some of the activities of the students reinforced all those fears!"

Those were tumultuous domestic times. The Vietnam War drove the student population up to over 1,400 as young men enrolled rather than enlist or be drafted. During the bombing of Cambodia, the President of the student body led protests and burned furniture, closing the college early that year. Grades were based on work through May 1. Students protested the shooting of students at Kent State University and marched for civil rights. Harry Marmion authored books on conscription, Selective Service: Conflict and Compromise, in 1968 and The Case Against a Volunteer Army in 1971.

In 1968 a new chapter of the Students for a Democratic Society (SDS) was born in the basement of the Shelter Island dorm. Dean Chuck Hitchcock related how on New Year's Eve of 1968, when he was new to the college, he was living in a house that he rented and one of his neighbors called him at 11:55 p.m. The neighbor asked if he was alone, with an invitation to "come down to celebrate." After a few drinks, the neighbors were freely talking about those "subversive college" people and the march on Jobs Lane in support for the Shinnecocks and African-Americans.

"Some regarded Southampton college as an intrusion," according to Bill Peterson, who would hear "remarks that were racist, sexist and reactionary."

A growing global awareness was reinforced through the hiring of former Peace Corps volunteers. Prof. Don Baker was cited for his international focus. A former Peace Corps volunteer himself, he recruited others, like John Strong, inviting them to the discussion of civil rights, needs in the third world, and domestic poverty. John Strong tutored Shinnecocks and established the Southampton Congress of Racial Equality (SCORE). Characterizing himself as an "instigator" he led students to protest in front of Bohack's against the plight of the grape workers and farm workers, receiving press coverage.

Harry Marmion, recounted the days of Suffolk's 7th Squad sending "undercover agents who acted like students, then busted them. A young man was studying for finals but his lease expired and he had to stay with friends for a few days, sleeping on the couch until his last exam. The people who lived in the house were busted and he was taken out with them." Harry Marmion invited the police to lunch, "picking up the tab," for a discussion "but the next night the 7th Squad was all over the campus. It was the most difficult police organization I dealt with."

Dean Hitchcock, who has a PhD in Sociology, said that "the community perceived the college to be a conduit for drugs." The Alternatives Counseling Center was formed for both the college and the community.

The college's ties to the community were supported early on through the network patterned by the involvement of the Faculty and Administrators. In addition to teaching at the college for over 30 years Chuck Hitchcock Chaired both the East Hampton Zoning Board of Appeals and the Board of Directors of The Retreat. His classes, like Social Stratification of the Hamptons, offered a higher level of insight into the surrounding community. He coached the college's first winning Men's Tennis season while Harry Marmion served as the 43rd President of the US Tennis Association.

John Strong's tenure at the school from 1964 to 1998 afforded him the opportunity to write prolifically on native Long Island people, publishing The Algonquian Peoples of Long Island from Earliest Times to 1700.

It would be difficult to adequately emphasize the Southampton College founding faculty's dedication, courage, talent and perseverance. All on the panel most certainly could have chosen or changed to careers with fewer difficulties and higher salaries, but in a time of national unrest and great change they chose to collectively create an environment for learning and inquiry with a passion for the pursuit for global enrichment. • would be jostling with one another to get before a microphone to denounce these murderers within their faith? Immediately after 9/11, Muhammad Ali got up and in a whisper said "There's nowhere in the Koran it says to kill people." Since then, nothing.

Not long ago, I read a shocking poll. Islamic followers in America were asked if they approve of Muslim fanatics becoming suicide bombers. 80% said yes.

The truth is this is not about oil. It is about a passage in the Koran that says it is okay to kill others who act to prevent you from practicing your religion. Orthodox Muslims pray five times a day. They stop what they are doing to do so. They are highly religious. They believe in God, in the same God we do, and they believe that God wants them to serve him with the simple life and the Islamic traditions, as written. The Hajj to Mecca. The daily prayers. The veiling of women. The ancient punishments of stoning and disfiguring for indiscretions.

That we don't agree with them doesn't bother them, if where we don't agree with them is not in their part of the world. But western ways now ARE taking over their part of the world. In capital after capital in the Islamic world, from the Mediterranean to Pakistan, women are becoming unveiled, western justice is replacing holy justice and even the prayers to Mecca five times are becoming an inconvenience in a busy city. It is becoming more and more difficult to practice the religion of Islam as the prophet requires. There are more and more people turning to video games and McDonalds and Rock and Roll music. Dirty, godless money changes hands. The Westerners offer it and corrupt Muslims receive it. Which is why in Osama's latest speech, the

The Sheltered Islander

Observations of an Islander #236

"Let it snow, let it snow, let it snow..." — Oh, SHUT UP!!!

They say that necessity is the mother of invention. I would like to add that snowstorms are the mother of creative cuisine.

You shopped extra at the IGA on Friday afternoon before the storm. But everyone's been inside, so they've eaten more and now it's Monday, Presidents Day and you need to shop again.

You drink your coffee and look out the window at the eight-foot mound of snow formerly known as your car and you dread shoveling it out. The morning progresses and you finally bundle up, ready for the onslaught, but — lo and behold — you can't open your front door! A three-foot drift allows you only a six-inch opening. For a moment you consider trying to get out of your back door, but that means you have to shovel your way around the house in addition to the front walk and your car, so that's out. Unless you're to the point you have to eat the cat, you're not shoveling out from the back.

The family is up, everyone's home because it's a holiday. They're foraging for breakfast: one is eating Doritos and coke, another is using Pina Colada mix for coffee creamer and still another is eating a can of olives. Ordinarily you'd have a fit, but when you're snowed in with your family, all nutritional rules are suspended. It's not that you don't have food, it's that you don't have food that they want. You are about to announce that they have to shovel you out if they want food, when you realize the IGA and/or the roads to it, may be closed. You decide you can make it one more day.

Pasta. We always have spaghetti pasta. All pasta is the same, just different shapes. Some people refuse to acknowledge that. Spaghetti noodles, chopped up and mixed with Velveeta or Kraft singles, is still macaroni and cheese — the mob will protest, but they'll eat it. Once I made a dinner for my family of chopped and buttered spaghetti noodles, a side of green beans, and scrambled eggs for protein.

You know that box of gingerbread mix you bought at Christmas because you wanted to bake and have that fragrance flow through the house as part of the Christmas ambience? Well, whip it out babe! They'll eat gingerbread as a snack if nothing else exists. Got an antique box of butterscotch pudding hiding in the cabinet? I made Tollhouse cookies with fruit cocktail instead of chips. It was just as awful as it sounds but they ate the cookies just the same. They can eat it or shovel you out.

Pets usually fair pretty good during a snowstorm because you run out of their food, so now they get to have yours. The cats get real tuna, the dogs get hamburger patties, not bad (and this also helps to fatten them up in case things get really desparate).

You can keep emptying the pantry no matter how crazy the dinners get and keep everyone alive for another week if you have to; it's when the real essentials run low that you feel the full effects of the storm.

Diapers. How many towels have been cut up and sacrificed to the cause? Deodorant. How many family members have been thrown out in the cold to freeze to death because they were too smelly to keep inside? Midol PMS Formula. How many men and children have waded through hip deep snow to the safety of a neighbor's home? How many of the lazy ones were strangled in their sleep?

Few sociologists will admit it, but what frees a family from a snow storm is cigarettes and/or alcohol. Every family has at least one smoker or drinker — if you don't have one in you family, you might consider getting one. The smoker and/or drinker will quickly go through their hidden emergency stash. They'll tough it out for about four hours. Then they'll realize they can't make it through the remainder of the day and part of tomorrow without a cigarette and/or drink. My family has both of these types and I'd have to say I think the smokers will dig you out faster than the drinkers. It is these highly motivated souls, God bless them, that will brave any onslaught of nature to dig out the car and get to the store! Remember all the Marlboro commercials of the cowboy on horseback all alone in the driving snow, weather no sane human would brave, sucking on the last stub of a hand rolled cigarette? Did you ever wonder where he was going out in such bad weather? I rest my case.

governments of Egypt, Jordan, Saudi Arabia and Iraq were condemned, too. And there you have it.

I think George W. Bush is waving a red flag when he gets up and says that we must bring democracy, American justice, the vote and western values to these Islamic countries. I think he would be better served, and he'd better serve all of us, if he were to get up and say that Islam is an ancient and holy religion and wherever it is practiced it will be treated fairly and respectfully, with due regard for all those who wish to practice it in the ancient manner. All we ask is that others who wish to worship in other ways be allowed to do so.

Bringing "freedom" and "democracy" and "women's rights" to a society that doesn't believe in these things is simply forcing our ways on others. We shouldn't be doing that, it seems to me.

I just wanted to make it clear what this is all about. Where Iraq fits into this, however, I cannot explain. It's a mystery. We have a crucial need to fight a war against terrorism at this time. We go looking for another war to fight. And we find one. I don't get it. •

KIDS IN CANDYLAND

Families flocked to the newly expanded Dylan's Candy Bar for the Kids in Candyland Benefit for Lenox Hill Neighborhood House. Over $80,000 was raised for children's programs. Many prominent New York and Hamptons families were there, two or three generations strong. Kids were treated to sweets, face painting, songs, story telling, min-burgers and a Gap backpack full of gifts. It was a special occasion as it was the coming out party for my daughter, Emily, who saw her best friend, Elmo, there.

LOVE WAS IN THE AIR

Text and Photos by Maria Tennariello

Valentine's Day marked the sixth annual "Renew Your Vows" ceremony performed by Reverend Joan Schauer at Gurney's Inn Resort & Spa in Montauk. Gurney's Ingrid Lemme and her husband Sunshine celebrated their 7th Anniversary on February 14. Couples gathered from all over Long Island, some in their original wedding gowns, to renew their vows, with some celebrating the special day with their children and grandchildren. The event gets bigger and better every year, so mark your calenders for next Valentine's Day. All welcome!

Opera Of The Hamptons Performs At Castello Di Borghese

Editor's note: Marco Borghese has recently begun a two-year tenure as president of the Long Island Wine Council. Formerly vice president, Marco replaces Harold Watts, owner of Ternhaven Cellars in Greenport, with Bob Palmer of Palmer Vineyards in Aquebogue elected to the post of vice president under Marco. Both Marco and Ann Marie have been active members in the council since purchasing Hargrave Vineyard in 1999. The Borghese's are hands-on owners, committed to producing wines of the highest distinction. The winery is located on the North Road in Cutchogue. –S.W.Simm

David Katz and Maria Ciccaglione won the hearts of those who saw them in the roles of the star-crossed lovers, Rodolfo and Mimi, in the Opera of the Hamptons' productions of La Boheme during the last two seasons. And on Valentine's weekend, Castello di Borghese gave us a chance once again to experience and enjoy the opera company's musical versatility during a sparkling evening of romantic music that was part of this year's celebrations of the thirtieth anniversary of this, the founding vineyard on eastern Long Island. Ann Marie and Marco Borghese also plan to donate part of the net proceeds of all of this year's events at the vineyard to benefit Eastern Long Island Hospital in Greenport.

"All for Love" was the theme for the evening and a reprise of some of the most wonderful arias from Boheme proved to be a very good place to start. Immediately it was clear that these two very talented artists really have a great stage presence and rapport, which pulls the audience deep into the emotions of their roles. They made excellent use of the small stage and brought added life and intensity to Rodolfo's rendition of Lovely Maid in the Moonlight. In a total change of pace and ambience came the wonderful "So in Love" from Kiss Me Kate. Here David and Maria showed that they have the rare gift of being able to sing grand opera and musical comedy and do these both with great style and panache, something some of the world's most famous opera stars try and fail. As confirmation of this, next we thrilled to one of the best known duets from any musical, as they recreated Andrew Lloyd Webber's intense "All I Ask of You" from Phantom of the Opera.

Neboysha R. Brashich (ELIH chairman), Atarah Hazzan, Maria Ciccaglion, David Katz, Marco and Ann Marie Borghese.

Maria interpreted the famous aria "O My Beloved Father" from Gianni Schicci in a very cheeky way as she fixed on a member of the audience to receive her entreaties and it would have been a very hardhearted father who could have resisted such a beautiful temptress! An immediate switch of mood and pace to the dark melodies of "Can't Help Loving That Man of Mine" kept the spellbound audience enthralled before the duo introduced and performed a medley of charming Neapolitan love songs. The final number, appropriately, was the well-known "Time to Say Goodbye" made so popular by Andrea Boccelli and Sarah Brightman.

While the focus of the evening was naturally on the performers, they would be the first to congratulate musical director Atarah Hazzan, who regularly thrills audiences at the summer opera performances with her ability to provide talented solo accompaniments to all of the operas. On this occasion, she showcased her talents in a different way as she effortlessly led the singers from Puccini to Lloyd Webber, Bernstein and Gershwin.

Maria Ciccaglione is shortly off to Israel to perform a leading role with the Tel Aviv Opera Company and David Katz, who has recently sung with the Houston Symphony, is also one of the "Three Jewish Tenors" who are receiving great acclaim for their performances around the country.

The final event of the evening was the fervent singing of "God Bless America" as we came back to reality from this enchanted world of music. It made me think of lines from the Phantom duet performed earlier, "All I want is freedom, A world with no more night." What more could we all ask and pray for?

A Bottle Of White, A Bottle Of Red

Channing Daughters Winery in Bridgehampton has made a name for itself making "fresh" (bright, fruity, and ready to drink) wines, such as its 2001 Fresh Red Merlot. And now, winemakers Larry Perrine and Christopher Tracy have introduced the winery's first "vino bianco," a wine inspired by the classic whites made in northeast Italy's Friuli-Venezia Giulia region near Austria. Using the Friulian "super whites," such as Tocai Friulano and Pinot Grigio, as models, Channing's 2001 Vino Blanco is made from a blend of Chardonnay, Sauvignon Blanc and Pinot Grigio. The wine is richly aromatic with aromas of tropical fruit, vanilla, and coconut, and, according to the winemakers, pairs well with oily fish such as salmon, cured meats, spicy pasta dishes and soft cheeses made from sheep and goats' milk.

Ninety-four cases of the wine were made, but only thirty remain as a result of the wine's popularity with members of Channing Daughters Wine Club. Available at the winery for $27.

Another new release from Channing is its 2001 Mudd Merlot, named for the vineyard on the North Fork where the grapes were purchased. It is a blend of 75 percent Merlot, 22 percent Cabernet Sauvignon, and 3 percent Cab Franc, all from some of Long Island's oldest vines. The wine is elegant with cherry and plum aromas and a deep fruit finish. Made in the winery's "trademark hedonistic style," which produced soft tannins and a wine that is drinkable immediately. Pair with steak or hearty game. $22 at the winery. Cheers.

Susan Whitney Simm is Dan's North Fork editor and wine writer. Email to wine@danspapers.com. Call 537-0500, ext. 510. Pre-release samples welcome.

Big Event Of The Week

LIVE WEBCAST FROM TORONTO'S GLENN GOULD STUDIO

In 1955, an unknown, eccentric Canadian pianist named Glenn Gould made his first recording for Columbia Masterworks at age 23.

After the release of that album, Bach's Goldberg Variations, he was instantly recognized as a musical genius and hailed as an international sensation.

Today, Toronto's Glenn Gould Studio is a state-of-the-art recording and performing venue. On Saturday, February 22, at 8 p.m., ARRAYMUSIC of Toronto will showcase some of the greatest works ever commissioned for its ensemble and webcast the performance live to the Floyd Memorial Library in Greenport. Included will be works by James Tenney, Christian Wolff, Jo Condo, and Linda C. Smith, who will also deliver a pre-concert chat live from Canada. Call 477-0660. –S.W.Simm

Shop 'Til You Drop...With Maria Tennariello

Well, well, it's not hell, it Camelot! Everyone was buried here on the East End this past holiday weekend, but I was able to get out of my driveway thanks to Paul Delzazzto of PMD Builders, Inc. He passed by as John and I were scratching our heads, trying to figure out how we were getting the cars out of a 450 foot driveway so I could go shopping and get to Dan's Papers. Thanks to Paul, who also does snow plowing with a smile, we did. So let's do some shopping!

At Touche, in Southampton, look for 20% to 70% off jeans, cords, silk tops, leather and more. Right now there is a cool 25% off Touche private label stretch Capri's, (my favorites). They are open Thursday through Monday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Or give them a call at 631-287-9660.

Don't miss the sale that's going on at Christopher Fischer on Jobs Lane in Southampton and Main Street in East Hampton. There is a very cool 50% off a selection of home and furniture and further reductions on our winter collection for men and women. Give it a whirl, you will be surprised what you will walk out the door with.

This is the time to shed those holiday pounds and get that heart ticking smoothly. Check out Gym Source on Windmill Lane in Southampton for their Freedom of Choice" sale that will save you 10% to 30% on all the newest cardio equipment...Look for brand names like Cybex, True, Schwinn, Stairmaster, Hoist, Vision and Nautilaus and more.

Nearby at Sunrise to Sunset The Beach and Lifestyle Store is having a "Relocation Sale" on all men's ladies and children's fall and winter clothing by Quicksilver and Roxy. There are lots of savings here, some of the discounts are from 20% to 70% off and there are some buy ones get one free deals along with skate sneakers, sandals, hats, accessories and selected surfboards. Gotta see it to believe it!

I finally did it! I bought a new couch. Hildreth's Department Store on Main Street in Southampton has some great deals going on right now on furniture and bedding. Take advantage of the $30% off selected merchandise sale for thirty days. I found a (one-of-a-kind) purple (eggplant) couch that will go perfect in my lavender living room at 50% off the original price. Thanks to Joyce Strong the sales associate for helping me make the decision. One problemo though, have to wait for the snow to melt to get it delivered. Tino (my mini schnauzer) better find another place to nap...Any ideas?

John Rogers Collection Outlet on Main Street in Southampton is having a giant inventory reduction sale and all merchandise must go out the door. The giant warehouse clearance on indoor and outdoor furniture is too good to be true. Located on 171 Mariner Drive in Southampton.

What's brewing at the Hampton Coffee Company? They are celebrating their "Specialty Coffee Month's" exclusive sponsor for all of New York State. Located on Montauk Highway in Watermill, the eight-year old Hampton /coffee Company is not only an espresso bar, café, juice bar and bakery, but a coffee roaster as well. For the week of February 24, everyone should take advantage of their special offers such as a free coffee scoop, just ask and you will get it, a free 1/4 pound of coffee beans with every pound of coffee purchased, and there are dozens of flavors to choose from. Hot deals, eh?

On the brighter side, Eclectic Design in the Breezway on Newtown Lane is having a 40% off sale storewide. Look for new and old furniture, home accents, silk florals, lamps, pillows and more.

At Fishers Home Furnishings on Main Street in Sag Harbor know for their antiques, repros, accessories, cupboards, armoires, bookcases, tables, chairs, sofas, ceramics, and on and on and on...is having a storewide sale. The sale brings you at least 20% off every item in stock until Sunday February 23. Wow!

Here I go again, making my way home down the driveway from hell, to plan my course for my next shopping adventure.

Until next week. Ciao and Happy Winter Shopping!

If you know of any sales and would like to share them with me, or have any questions regarding the shops or sales, please email me at shoptil@danspapers.com or fax: 631-537-3330.

Away At School... By David Lion Rattiner

Alien Invasion Thwarted

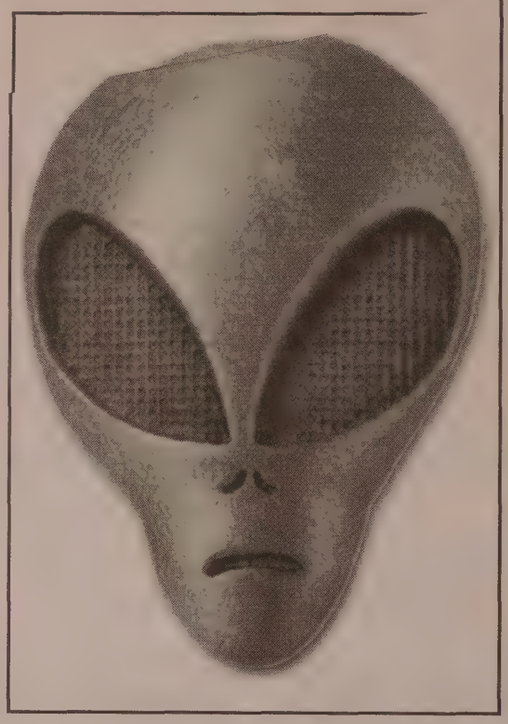
It was a quiet time on board the space ship. All of the aliens were a little nervous. Everyone was anxious to know what the report back from the scout ship sent down to Earth was going to be. The giant computer screen stood tall at the main deck of the ship with a steady picture of planet Earth. You could see the entire United States on the screen. The trouble was, the northeastern part of the country was completely [illegible] white. However, Captain Scarpullazerk, leader of the [illegible] military for the alien race called the Gwizingys, was confident that his fleet of battle ships would succeed.

Captain Scarpullazerk was a Gwizingy and proud to be one. He stands tall on two feet with arms and legs like a human being. His skin is dark green and the top of his bald head has four large bumps on both sides, the distinguishing mark of a Gwizingy.

This space ship Captain Scarpullazerk is in charge of is not like the other space ships that are in the fleet of thousands surrounding the Earth this very minute. This space ship is the leader. It is the mother space ship, practically the size of three football stadiums.

Nobody was talking on board; everyone was just waiting and staring at the screen. Everyone was taking note of the white clouds that seemed to engulf the northeastern region of the U.S. Captain Scarpullazerk did not like the looks of what he was seeing at all. He just could not figure out what he was looking at.

They had spent the past five years examining Earth, looking for its strengths and its weaknesses. His army had been preparing for the invasion for nearly eighteen months now. Never in his military career had he seen something as drastic as what he was seeing on the screen. It seemed as if the northeast, the most important region of Earth for humans and technology, was preparing for his invasion.



Captain Scarpullazerk had successfully invaded and taken over four other planets before Earth. Each of them was studied in the same manner. The same precautions had been taken so that their spaceships would not be detected by the planet [illegible]. The key to a successful interplanetary [illegible] was the element of surprise. The idea was to fire a giant heat ray at the planet that would kill almost everyone. After that, all they had to do was send in a couple thousand Gwizingy foot soldiers down on the planet and finish the rest of the opposing species off. The heat ray was vital to success because of the limited number of soldiers available. There are only about 100,000 of them.

All other planets invaded before Earth had never seen the space ships or heat ray coming. None before Earth had ever prepared for it. But somehow, they seemed to be setting up a defense. The Earthlings were covering the entire northeast with a white substance unknown to the Gwizingy's. The white substance appeared to be freezing cold. It was obvious to Captain Scarpullazerk that the Earthlings were preparing for a heat ray attack. Would the heat ray be able to penetrate all of this white, freezing substance and set up a successful invasion? This was the question that the scout ship was going to answer. After all, Captain Scarpullazerk was not about to throw away his military career on such a small planet like Earth. He was unwilling to take any chances.

Suddenly an alarm on the space ship went off signaling the return of the scout ship. Captain Scarpullazerk quickly rushed down to the flight deck to the scout ship. One of the Gwizingys walked up to Captain Scarpullazerk and saluted. Captain Scarpullazerk looked at him in his eye and said, "What do you have to report, Vanricklink?"

The private looked up at Captain Scarpullazerk with fear and said, "Sir! My observations of planet Earth conclude that the humans have become aware of our presence and our plans for invasion! They have covered a vital sector of the planet with a substance known to them as snow! They have done this in preparation of our heat ray attack! According to my calculations, we will not be able to successfully eliminate any of the human threat in this sector with our heat ray!" A bead of sweat dropped down from the private's head.

Captain Scarpullazerk looked distressed. He knew that the capture of the northeast was vital to the success of the invasion. How could he invade a planet that was not crippled by his heat ray? It had never been done before. What other tricks did these humans have up their sleeves that he had overlooked? It all started to feel too risky.

Captain Scarpullazerk glanced over to his second in command of the ship, "Call off the invasion and prepare for immediate retreat."

"Yes sir." The second in command ran out of the flight deck to tell the crew the captain's new orders.

Suddenly a series of rocket engines and electronic sounds started filling the flight deck. Captain Scarpullazerk was happy with his decision to abandon the invasion of Earth. He knew that there were other planets out there that were not so clever.

Guy de Fraumeni's Hollywood In The Hamptons

Shanghai Knights, How To Lose A Guy 10 Days

Like the primordial, slip-sliding glacier that crunched its way south and helped form this Long Island, equally icy Hollywood reluctantly crawls east, helping to shore up shaky New York City. Forcing this monumental shift is the earth-shaking, volcanic producer, Harvey Weinstein the mighty head of Miramax Films, a very independent New York based mini-studio. This year, Harvey and brother, Bob, a coupla' film buffs from Queens, magnituded-with-moxie, have produced five major movies that, justifiably, dominate the market, and the Oscars (40 nominations including 3 Best Pictures). As with the majors, they released and promoted the films at year's end so now we're left with trivial new movies that are nothing new. Take Shanghai Knights and How to Lose a Guy in 10 Days. Please!

When you consider the serious heft of Miramax's, Chicago, The Hours, Gangs of New York , The Quiet American and Frida, the lighter-than-air recent releases seem to evaporate as you watch them. How to Lose a Guy is pure ozone. It layers the popcorn scented atmosphere of the theatre with the contrived acrid odors of feminine hygiene products to give the movie some bite, but, like its leading lady, Kate Hudson, how can you be put on edge by such a charming thing, even if wanting a fella to get lost, she crams his medicine cabinet with those female consumer-marketed products designed to sell by using any ploy, real or imagined. Packaged to be "genuine," it's only when your cupboard is full to bursting that you realize you've been taken. How to Lose a Guy is another gimcrack off the Hollywood assembly line of romantic comedies (most recently, Maid in Manhattan and Two Weeks Notice, etc.). Fortunately, this is one of the best because it's funny! Thanks to Burr Steers for his half of the screenplay. He wrote and directed the acerbic, Igby Goes Down and the tartness in How To Lose gives a lot of tang to the saccharin, melt-in-your mouth and before- your-eyes nature of "Sex and the City"/"Dating Game" scenarios. The boy part of this boy-girl mish-mash is Matthew Maconaughey, who amply fills the shoes of the guy she wants to lose by embarrassingly dubbing his penis with a puny title. Why is she so cruel? She's writing an article for a woman's magazine cataloging things to get rid of men, period! She doesn't know, however, that he made a bet with his boss that he can make any woman fall in love with him, regardless of her period. Who'll win... question mark?

The Shanghai Knights are another combative romantic-comedy couple, however, they're the buddy team of Jackie Chan and Owen Wilson, back together again. This is a sequel to their 2000 release, Shanghai Noon, another mish-mash, this one a Hong Kong/Action/Western. From the first take-off on High Noon they are off to England, hence Knights, picking up where they left off in 1887. Gee, they must have been impressed by Gangs of New York – same time frame and a lot of street fighting in way-way, over budget sets and costumes. All this aside, Knights is far superior to Noon. It's very clever and very funny. Plot wise, it isn't very wise. Mr. Chan quits his Sheriff of Carson City job to avenge his father's death. He goes to New York and picks up Owen. They go to Victorian London to nab the father's assassin. There, they run into Jackie's sister, Fann Wong, also adept at martial arts. She's excellent at crouching with tigers and, hiding tigers (whatever that means). Together, they battle and initiate mayhem in celebrity-ridden London. They encounter: Arthur Conan Doyle, Queen Victoria, Jack the Ripper and a young Charlie Chaplin in varying styles of Harold Lloyd and Keystone Cops and there's a heck of a lot more. There is so much spectacular, uncontrolled fury and clamorous contentiousness it could be mistaken for a business meeting with Harvey Weinstein. It figures... It's Chan's and Wilson's best work.

Guy-Jean de Fraumeni is the producer/writer/director of award-winning European and American feature films. He has been a judge at major Film and TV award competitions, including the Oscars, the Emmy's and various film festivals. He is assisted by Sarah Halsey.

ART COMMENTARY With Marion Wolberg Weiss

Collaborative Art: The Royal Art Lodge

Collaboration is an inherent aspect of many creative forms, particularly the performing arts. Consider the myriad of individuals involved in play or movie production (unless you happen to be a filmmaker like Springs' resident Stan VanderBeek who was his own actor, writer, director, editor, set designer and distributor).

Conversely, the visual arts are solitary endeavors, although we can recall significant collaborative projects like the drawing exercise created by the surrealists (the "Exquisite Corpse").

Moreover, collaborative art assumes diverse methods, depending on the culture. According to Stony Brook University professor and media artist, Philip Balwin, working together in the Far East is a bit different than in the Untied States. "In America, it's hard to start the car, metaphorically speaking, yet once you get it on the road, it's OK," he explains. "In Korea, for example, it's the opposite. An art project starts right up; it's easy to get a whole team ready, people who love to get things done. Keeping the project 'on the road,' however, may be tough."

A Winnipeg-based collaborative, the Royal Art Lodge, seems to have both start-up ability and staying power. Meeting weekly since 1995 resulted in individual and group works featuring varied media: drawings, sculptures, videos, puppets, costumes, dolls and music. A description of the group's endeavors suggested equally diverse subjects and materials: film noir, TV comedies, and science fiction which use original hand-drawn images, rejected objects and personalized texts, respectively.

This said, an actual visit to the Royal Art Lodge's current exhibit at New York's Drawing Center was a disappointment for this critic, despite the show's promotion. What sounded innovative and edgy appeared cliché and stale.

Charles Addams' recent show at Guild Hall was much more interesting, given the similarity in his naïve style. The bite of black humor was lacking, too, although this aspect was to be the group's strong point. There was not one single work or series that yours truly found arresting or even challenging. Perhaps it was because the pieces were not hung well: crowded and non-discriminating. In this exhibit, unfortunately, collaboration did not fulfill its potential.

Work from the Royal Art Lodge will be on view at New York's Drawing Center, 35 Wooster Street, until March 8.

Honoring the Artist: Eileen Serwer

Despite the fact that Eileen Serwer was leaving for Cuba the very next day, this part-time Remsenburg resident was still willing to talk about her art as she drove to her Manhattan apartment – even if it was from a cell phone on the Long Island Expressway. Taking things in stride, Ms. Serwer continued the conversation when she finally arrived back in New York City.

And despite the fact that Ms. Serwer travels a fair amount, often to such places perfect for painting, like Morocco, Southern France and Italy, it's the East End where she finds her most enjoyable settings, particularly the fields and marshlands near her Remsenburg home.

"We came here twenty-years ago to visit a friend and fell in love with the locale. We bought the first house we saw for sale," Ms. Serwer explains. "My heart sings when I'm here."

It's easy to see why Ms. Serwer is drawn to the area's peaceful and moody scenes (like the one on the cover) even though her works included Southern France's sunflowers and poppies, as well. But the artist is firm when she says, "There's no place like here. If I had a choice of any studio in the world, it would still be the one I have in Remsenberg."

While Ms. Serwer was always attracted to art, as recently as twelve years ago she was involved in other professions: elementary school teaching, real estate and interior design. Now she remarks, "I only have to deal with myself, to create what I want. I remember taking a painting class in the sixth grade and then when I was in my thirties taking a course that wasn't challenging. Finally, I enrolled in the Art Students League, thinking, 'I don't know what I want do.' Fortunately, I got a teacher who told me to go out and get some pastels and a pad of paper. I've been working with pastels ever since."

Although Ms. Serwer experiments, using different paper to get diverse looks, she says she doesn't plan on changing her medium: "Pastels allow for spontaneity, and I can add layers and layers of color." But not all things have remained the same, Ms. Serwer said, noting that "I didn't pursue art as a career before, but I am now."

Proof of this pursuit lies in the shows she's had, including one in Germany and an upcoming one (April) at New York's Works Gallery. She is also a juried member of the Pastel Association of America.

Despite such activities, however, nothing beats Ms. Serwer's Remsenberg retreat, where she finds the most solace. "It's paradise to me," she remarks with conviction. –Marion Wolberg Weiss

Ms. Serwer is represented by Southampton's Chrysalis Gallery.

It's getting down to the wire for the Stephen Talkhouse talent contest. Thursday, February, 27 is the last night before finals on March 6 and it's pretty full. To enter you must pay a reasonable $20 per act. There are three categories, solo, group and random. Solo is two or fewer, group is three or more and random are comics, poets and cat jugglers. The contest will be judged by the audience accounting for half and the other half by three judges. Sounds like an episode of American Idol, doesn't it!? The big winner of the group category will get a $1,000 late spring or early summer weekend gig. What's better than that? The winner of the solo act gets a cash award tied in with a late spring or early summer weekend gig. All contestants will receive tickets to upcoming shows at the Talkhouse. There is always, of course, a chance to be signed for the Talkhouse, too. You know that's a great gig. The contest is aired on LTV on Saturday after the show. Show your talent and call (631) 267-3117. Who knows, you could be the next Amagansett Idol.

Silvia Lehrer's Cooking Column

In mid to late winter after indulging in hearty soups and meaty stews for weeks and weeks I feel the urge to consume more winter vegetables like parsnips, carrots, cabbage and spinach. Yet I still want the warmth of the winter kitchen to make mealtime a comforting experience.

Memory served me well when I recalled an onion gratin recipe from my early culinary studies. Just imagine slices of crusty bread softened under the weight of stewed onions and melting cheese, a bit of butter, wine and seasonings. The dish is pure solace. And along comes Penelope Casas' tasty vegetable bean paella with dried beans, sweet pepper and fresh spinach to deliciously satisfy my legume and vegetable cravings. At times however I glutton for the likes of baby back ribs and since this isn't barbecue season I'll cook them atop a mix of root vegetables and winter cabbage for an inexpensive and substantial one dish supper. Any one of these dishes can help you to get the better of winter.

ONION GRATINEE

A melange of onions, bread and cheese afloat in a watery bath. A funnel makes it easier to add the boiling salted water to the mixture as it cooks.
Serves 4-6

3 large Bermuda or Spanish onions, about 1 1/2 pounds, thinly sliced
1/4 cup unsalted butter
14-16 slices crusty Italian or French bread, about 1/4 inch thick
1 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
1 cup freshly grated Gruyere cheese
Lightly salted boiling water (amount depends on the pot used for cooking.)
1/2 cup dry white wine
2-3 teaspoons coarse (kosher) salt
Additional grated cheese (optional)
3 tablespoons unsalted butter, cut into thin slices

1. Slice onion paper-thin or slice in food processor using light pressure.

2. Melt butter in a heavy 5-quart Dutch saute pan or skillet with a cover. Put in the onions, sprinkle with salt and toss to coat with the butter. Reduce heat to a bare simmer and cook covered about 20 minutes. Cook the onions slowly over low heat being careful not to brown them. Remove cover and cook stirring occasionally for another 25-30 minutes or until the onions are nicely glazed. The onions should take on a rich color at the end of this cooking time. If not, increase the heat slightly and continue to cook, being careful not to burn them.

3. Transfer two-thirds of the cooked onions to a side dish, leaving a layer at the base of the pan. Place bread slices one layer deep over the onions. Combine cheeses and spoon on a layer to cover the bread. Continue layering, spreading onions, bread and cheese, in that order, ending with the cheese. The pan should be about 3/4 full at this point.

4. Meanwhile, bring several quarts of water to the boil and add salt to taste. Ease the tip of a funnel down the inside of the pan. Pour in the salted water and wine slowly and careful until the bread level rises to about 1-inch or until the bread barely floats. Move the funnel around the sides of the pan to distribute the liquid evenly.

5. Cook the ingredients in the skillet, uncovered, over low heat to maintain a constant surface bubble for one hour. Add boiling salted water as necessary to keep bread moist.

Preheat oven to 350 degrees

6. Sprinkle more cheese over the top and dot with the sliced butter. Bake about 35-40 minutes. After about 25 minutes check to see if crust is forming. If not increase oven heat to 375 degrees and continue cooking. Spoon onto warm plates for serving.

VEGETABLE BEAN PAELLA

This tasty vegetarian paella with spinach and sweet red pepper is "pebbled" with a mix of chickpeas and red beans.
Serves 6

1 can (15.5-ounce) chickpeas
1 can (15.5 ounce) red beans
About 4 cups chicken stock, homemade or low sodium broth
1/4 teaspoon crumbled saffron
4 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1 bunch scallions, trimmed and thinly sliced
6-8 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1 large red bell pepper, trimmed and cut into small dice
1/2 pound fresh spinach leaves, washed and spin-dried
1 tomato-on-the-vine cut into small dice
2 tablespoons finely chopped flat-leaf Italian parsley
1 teaspoon paprika, preferably Spanish smoked
3/4 teaspoon ground cumin
2 cups imported Spanish or Arborio short grain rice
1/2 teaspoon coarse (kosher) or sea salt, or to taste

1.Drain the beans over a bowl and reserve the liquid from the cans. Combine the bean liquid in a pot with enough broth to make 4 – 4 1/2 cups. Add the saffron and keep hot over the lowest heat.

2. Heat the oil in a paella pan measuring 17-18 inches at its widest point or in a shallow casserole of similar size. Saute the scallions, garlic and red pepper, stirring for 2-3 minutes. Put in the spinach and stir to mix. Simmer over medium low hat until peppers are tender and greens are wilted. Add the tomato and parsley and cook 1-2 minutes, then season with paprika and cumin.

Preheat oven to 400 degrees for gas oven or 450 for electric.

3. Stir in the rice and coat well with the pan mixture. Pour in 4 cups hot broth and bring to a boil. Add the beans and salt, and continue to boil, stirring and rotating the pan occasionally, until the mixture is no longer soupy but sufficient liquid remains to continue cooking the rice. about 5 minutes'

4. Transfer the pan to the oven and cook, uncovered, 10-12 minutes in a gas oven, 18-20 minutes electric, until; the rice is almost al dente. Remove to a warm spot, cover the pan with lid or foil, and let sit for 10-12 minutes, until rice is cooked to taste.

ITALIAN PEASANT CASSEROLE

Baby back ribs cook over an aromatic mix of hearty winter vegetables to make a rich and inspired one-dish supper.
Serves 4

For the vegetables
3 tablespoons extra-virgin olive oil
1 large onion, finely chopped
2 carrots, trimmed and diced
2 parsnips, trimmed and diced
1 small head cabbage, trimmed and cut into 2-inch wedges
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper
1/4 cup dry white wine

For the ribs
1 tablespoon vegetable oil
2 pounds baby back ribs
1/3 cup red or white vinegar
Coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper
1/2 cup chicken stock or low-sodium broth

1. Heat oil in a 12-inch Dutch saute pan with a cover. Put in the onion, carrots and parsnips and saute, stirring occasionally for 2-3 minutes. Add the cabbage, salt and pepper to taste and stir to mix. Add the white wine and bring to a boil. Simmer mixture for 6-8 minutes longer until vegetables are barely tender.

2. Meanwhile heat oil and brown ribs on all sides in a separate skillet, about 6-8 minutes. Place the ribs on top of the vegetables and season with salt and pepper. Add the vinegar to the pan the ribs cooked in and stir to deglaze the browned bits in the bottom of the pan. Pour deglazed juices over the ribs and add the broth. Season with salt and pepper. With cover ajar, simmer the casserole for 35-40 minutes or until vegetables and ribs are tender. Check moisture in pan as the casserole cooks. If necessary add more broth or water to the pan.

Dining In The Hamptons

Head over to Babette's for some inventive new lunch specials: wild mushroom and leek ravioli with roasted butternut squash, sage goat cheese and pistachio oil and lemon grilled shrimp with shaved fennel and avocado salad over a crisp risotto corn cake in tomato coriander broth. They're also serving different specialty soups freshly made to order like Thai coconut chicken soup and New England style clam chowder.

Not the wine dinner type? How about a beer dinner? Rowdy Hall and Southampton Publick House are teaming up for their first ever beer dinner on February 27. The event will be held at Rowdy Hall at 6 p.m. The five-course menu includes striped bass with stewed white beans, leeks and French beans with Southampton Publick House Biere de Garde, and Shepherd's Pie served with Brooklyn Brown Ale. Should be a really fun event; call Rowdy at 324-8555 for reservations and details.

Bedell Cellars is celebrating Mardi Gras on the weekend of March 1 and 2. They'll celebrate with Mardi Gras beads, Kir Royales made with Bedell's very own raspberry wine and an assortment of delectable homemade hors d'oeuvres. There will also be a raffle of a three bottle gift pack of Bedell Cellars 1998 Cabernet Sauvignon. A wine special will be available offering a 15% discount off 3 or more bottles 2000 Bedell Cellars Gewurztraminer

Back from vacation: Indian Cove in Hampton Bays has reopened. They're open Friday, Saturday and Sunday and they have a Sunday Seafood Festival for $21.75. It includes lobster, mussels, clams and shrimp, soup or salad, and a free glass of beer... Mirko's in Water Mill is back too – for their twentieth season! They have a prix fixe on Thursdays and Sundays... The Lobster Inn in Southampton is back... The Harvest in Montauk is open again.

Recognizing Our East End Farmers

Long Island Farm Bureau has chosen Mr. Phil Schmitt of Philip A. Schmitt & Sons Farms in Riverhead as the Amherst Davis Memorial Farmer Citizen Award recipient for 2003. This honor is conferred for distinguished and selfless service to the agricultural industry. Equally important is his commitment to his community and his contribution to it.

He has been described as bright, unassuming, subdued and generous to a fault. But Phil Schmitt sees his occupation as farmer a simple choice made when he was very young. "It's all I really wanted to do," he said.

As president of this family business, Phil focuses on the bottom line. The farm is a wholesale operation producing vegetables, specialty crops and cut flowers on 200 acres. The largest crop grown and harvested is spinach.

Everyone in the Schmitt family has a part to play. Although his parents, Philip and Anne are semi-retired, they still help out on a fairly regular basis. Debbie, Phil's wife of 22 years, comes in at 6 a.m. every day to deal with the yard customers and the cut flowers. "She has always supported me," he says with affection. Phil and Debbie have three children, Philip age 20, Mathew age 18 and Kristie age 14. All of the kids assume general farming responsibilities and Kristie helps her Mom with the cut flowers end of the business. Also involved with the enterprise is Phil's sister Kathy, her husband Stanley and their two boys, Andrew and Danny. "Part of me would love it if our children followed in our footsteps, however, there are so many other opportunities for them. I am not pushing them into it, but neither am I pushing them out. Deb and I just want them to be happy," said Phil with a smile and a shrug.

Although the business keeps him very busy, Phil has been able to make a significant mark on Long Island's agricultural industry. "Phil is one of the most highly respected leaders in the farming community. He has done so much for Farm Bureau, Cornell Cooperative Extension, the Lab and his peers in an unpretentious and congenial manner," claims Joe Gergela, Executive Director of Long Island Farm Bureau.

In 1995, Phil was elected President of Long Island Farm Bureau and served three consecutive one-year terms where he focused on land use issues, sensible legislation including the Breast Cancer Pesticide Registry Bill and the Farm Property Tax Credit, working cohesively with Cornell Cooperative Extension in getting funding for their new offices on Griffing Avenue, and arranging various educational affairs such as "Asset Management" seminars in concert with Farm Family, Farm Credit and the Peconic Land Trust. He has served as Vice-President, Treasurer and member of the Board of Directors.

"I am very happy that I served as President. It was a great experience but I was certainly not alone; I had a terrific board and an efficient staff with which to work. They all made me look good!" Phil happily admitted. But what really makes his tenure unique is that during those very same years Debbie served as President of Saint Isidore Parish School, all the time raising three children. It certainly qualifies as a case study in time management as the family juggled work, evening meetings, after school activities and family time without ever letting their responsibilities falter. As a matter of fact, Phil and Debbie continue to have the 4th grade at St. Isidore School visit the farm each year as they explain and demonstrate the workings of an agricultural operation.

It is clear that Phil is committed to both agricultural education and economic security as he participates on the following committees: The Agricultural Economic Committee for Suffolk County, The Agricultural Program Advisory Board for Cornell Cooperative Extension of Suffolk County, the Riverhead Local Affairs Committee and the Agricultural Stewardship Committee of Suffolk County. He currently chairs the Promotion and Education Committee for Long Island Farm Bureau.

In 2001 Phil, along with many of his peers, was able to reopen negotiations with King Kullen Grocery Company after many years of stalled activity. Through his leadership, local farmers and King Kullen have worked cooperatively to provide fresh local produce and flowers to the 33 stores in the chain. "Our relationship with King Kullen has been growing over the past two years. I am so pleased to see what King Kullen is doing for Long Island growers – bringing LI product to Long Island people," he proudly admitted.

The Long Island Farm Bureau's Amherst Davis Farmer Citizen of the Year Award will be presented to Phil Schmitt on March 8, 2003, at the 86th Annual Dinner Dance and Awards Banquet at the Polish Hall in Riverhead. Tickets are $45. Reservations can be made by calling 631-727-3777.

Specialty Coffee: The Luxury Liquid...

Don't get left out in the cold without a nice hot container of freshly brewed coffee this winter season.

Here are some coffee trivia questions and answers that I thought were quite interesting, provided by The Hampton Coffee Company in Watermill.

Q: Does an espresso have more caffeine than a regular cup of coffee?

A: No! Generally, a serving of drip coffee has more caffeine than a shot of espresso. In fact, in the espresso brewing method, water is in contact with grounds for only 20-25 seconds and therefore extracts less caffeine than methods in which the water is in contact with the grounds for several minutes.

Q: Is strong tasting coffee has more caffeine than weak tasting coffee?

A: No! Caffeine contributes no flavor to coffee. Caffeine content is primarily a product of the type of coffee beans used, the water to coffee ratio, and the method of brewing.

Q: Was coffee originated in Colombia or Brazil?

A: No! Coffee originated in Ethiopia.

Q: Does the term "specialty coffee" refer to espresso-based drinks such as cappuccinos, lattes and mochas?

A: No! The term "specialty coffee" refers to the highest quality green coffee beans roasted to their greatest flavor potential by true crafts people and then properly brewed to well established standards. When green, true specialty coffee will have ZERO defects (such as sour beans, black beans, foreign matter, or anything else that will not undergo the correct chemical transformation during the roasting process) a 350 gram sample. Some poor quality coffee can have over 600 defects in a sample. Specialty coffee is not defined by a brewing method, such as the use of an espresso machine.

Q: Can properly stored, ground coffees remain fresh for several weeks or even months?

A: No! Once a roasted coffee bean is ground, oxidation quickly damages the aromatics and most of the flavor is lost rapidly. Roasted coffee should only be ground immediately before brewing.

Q: Does the term "specialty coffee" refer to flavored coffee?

A: No! Though flavored coffee is one of the many options available to coffee drinkers, the truly great

Police Blotter

You would think that with the recent blizzard and cold weather, local crime would take a seat by the fire, so to speak. Last week in East Hampton, Town Police received a call from a victim of a rather chilling theft. He told police that someone entered his shed on Poplar Street and removed his $2,200 Canondale Mountain Bike. The bike was described as "gray and red with a wide V frame." What's so chilling about this crime, you ask? Just picture the thief riding a bike in mid February.

Well, the weather outside is frightful and, to tell the truth, the fire was fairly frightful too at a Goodfriend Drive storage building in East Hampton on Thursday. The Village PD called the Town PD that morning who in turn called the Ross School Security Officer who told them that a circuit breaker was ablaze and that gas was leaking. East Hampton Town PD called LIPA and Keyspan who, with the help of EH Fire Department and local law enforcement, shut down the main power complex and evacuated the surrounding area without major incident or injury. No information was available as to what caused the fire and gas leak.

Police were called to a Health Spa in Montauk last weekend to investigate a theft. A woman told Spa Security that she was changing in the locker room and left her belongings for 40 seconds as she escorted her 6-year-old son out of the locker room (naughty boy). When she returned, her purse and room keys were missing. Police arrived to investigate and soon pinpointed the slow-thinking criminal; the only other person in the locker room at the time. Security [illegible] her locker and found the keys, then called the thief on her cell p[illegible] The woman was asked to come down to the Montauk police station where she was arrested on charges of petit larceny.

Montauk police arrested a Guatemala native last Sunday on the Napeague Stretch. Police said the man was traveling west through the 55 mile per hour zone at speeds in excess of 80 miles per hour. When the speeder failed to produce proper I.D., a back ground check was done, proving the nonexistence of any driver's license at all. He was arrested but later released when a friend arrived with his passport and posted the $50 bail.

ROLLING OUT THE TANK

Dear Dan,

Re: George W. Bush as a Sherman Tank (February 7, 2003 Page 18)

Your comparison of President Bush to a Sherman Tank is a good one. It's about time we had a President who looks at all the issues and all the threats to our country, evaluates them, and identifies the one that is the most dangerous to us at the present time and then "single-mindedly" goes after that threat and eliminates it. Then, after that threat has been dealt with, he repeats the process and deals with the next threat to our country.

The alternative, in recent years, was a President who tried to create a public image that he was dealing with everything at once. In fact, what he actually did was to give each issue or threat a half-hearted "lick" and a promise. His "licks" were too little to accomplish anything and his promises were never kept. (Do you remember being promised that the terrorists responsible for the bombings of the Khobar Towers American facility in Saudi Arabia and of the USS Cole would be "identified, found and brought to justice"? Never happened, did it?) He failed to actually resolve any issues or eliminate any threats, and simply delayed their actual resolution until someone else became President. How else can one characterize his 1994 "deal" with North Korea other than as just delaying dealing with the problem of the North Korean nuclear weapons program until someone else became President? We also had a recent candidate for the Presidency whose attitude seems to have been that it would have been appropriate for us to apologize to bin Laden for our buildings getting in the way of his airplanes (his by right of an "oppressed people" to hijack anything they regard as "rightfully theirs").

You can make little jokes about President Bush, call him silly names, etc. if you want to. I for one applaud a President who actually deals with issues and threats "single-mindedly" until they are resolved or eliminated, rather than just delaying their resolution until the next President takes office. I would call what President Bush is doing actually fulfilling his oath of office to "preserve, protect and defend" our country. If that makes him a "Sherman Tank," so be it. We could use more "Sherman Tanks" in office at all levels of government, state and local as well as Federal.

ONE FOR THE BIRDS

Dear Dan,

It is sad indeed to see a brave soaring eagle such as General Powell having his plumage plucked, reduced to fluttering with a frenzied flock of chicken hawks led by the likes of such base buzzards as Cheney and Rumsfeld.

Under the leadership of our feather-brained admistration, our country may soon be reduced to being figuratively, for the birds. Looks like the Coo-Coos perched on the Executive Branch are running the roost and ruining the coop... and they say the Dodo is extinct.

REVISIONIST HISTORY?

Dear Dan,

Just as many Israelis consider the greatest extent of Biblical Israel their natural borders, Saddam claimed Kuwait based on the greatest extent of Iraq's predecessors' borders. Now just how does that justify Bush in claiming any oil-rich (coincidence, huh?) region as included within America's "strategic interest" borders? He already has rumbled at the "disloyalty" of Saudi Arabia, Indonesia, Venezuela, and Iran. Did you know that many Koreans consider the whole peninsula one country and that Fluor Corporation (with its many military contracts) now has a contract to build an offhore natural gas facility in South Korea?

George W. Bush, with his dissolute history, may be the strongest argument yet against the use of illegal mind-altering substances.

HEALTH & BEAUTY

specialty coffees of the world have very distinct and satisfying flavor profiles and do not require additives.

Q: Is specialty coffee expensive?

A: No again! Even highly prized single-origin estate grown specialty coffees may sell for only $10.99 a pound. Brewed correctly (two tablespoons or nine to eleven grams of coffee per six ounces of water) you will still get fifty cups from that pound, making the cost of each cup for twenty-four cents – cheaper than bottled water.

So the next time you think of a nice cup of fresh coffee, think about having one at the Hampton Coffee Company.

Sometimes Neither a Picture nor 1000 Words is Enough. Take, for instance, this unique East Hampton compound consisting of a main house, a fully legal guest house, a renovated bard/studio and yet another outbuilding which would make a perfect pool house. All woven together with delightful gardens, pathways, and outdoor entertaining areas, 3 bedrooms in the main house, 2 bedrooms in the guest cottage. Everything in mint condition and impeccably decorated. Great rental histories on both houses. The only way to appreciate this marvelous property is to see it in person. No picture will suffice. Call for your appointment. Co-Exclusive. $985,000.
